Essential Practices for Completing Ramadan

The following practices are essential for Muslims to observe at the of Ramadan:

1. Eid-ul-Fitr: The Festival of Breaking the Fast

Eid-ul-Fitr, also known as the "Festival of Breaking the Fast," is celebrated on the first day following Ramadan. Muslims gather for special prayers, exchange greetings, and engage in festive activities to mark the end of the fasting period.

2. Zakat-ul-Fitr: Obligatory Charity

Zakat-ul-Fitr is an obligatory charity payable by Muslims before Eid-ul-Fitr. It is intended to purify the fasting person from any shortcomings and to help the needy.

3. Maintaining Good Deeds

The spiritual practices cultivated during Ramadan should continue beyond the month's end. Muslims are encouraged to maintain their prayers, charity, and good conduct.

Rulings on Fasting and Related Matters

The following rulings provide guidance on fasting and related matters during the final days of Ramadan:

1. Fasting on the Last Day

It is permissible to fast on the last day of Ramadan, but it is not obligatory. Some Muslims choose to fast as an act of devotion.

2. Laylat-ul-Qadr: The Night of Power

Laylat-ul-Qadr is believed to be the night when the Quran was revealed to Prophet Muhammad. It is considered a highly blessed night, and many Muslims engage in prayers and religious observances on this occasion.

3. Sighting the New Moon

The end of Ramadan is determined by the sighting of the new moon. Muslims should rely on the official announcements from their local religious authorities.

Jurisprudential Perspectives on Completing Ramadan

Various Islamic schools of jurisprudence have different perspectives on certain aspects of completing Ramadan:

1. Hanafi School

According to the Hanafi school, it is recommended to fast on the last day of Ramadan. Zakat-ul-Fitr should be paid after Eid prayers.

2. Maliki School

The Maliki school does not consider fasting on the last day of Ramadan to be recommended. Zakat-ul-Fitr should be paid before Eid prayers.

3. Shafi'i School

The Shafi'i school views fasting on the last day of Ramadan as permissible but not obligatory. Zakat-ul-Fitr should be paid before Eid prayers.

4. Hanbali School

The Hanbali school considers fasting on the last day of Ramadan to be discouraged. Zakat-ul-Fitr should be paid before Eid prayers.

Understanding the directives and rulings on completing the month of Ramadan is essential for Muslims to observe the proper practices and fulfill their religious obligations. By adhering to these guidelines and continuing the spiritual practices cultivated during Ramadan, Muslims can reap the full benefits of this blessed month.
